2021 Philanthropists of the Year

Bloomington-Normal: Hank and Mary Campbell

Hank and Mary Campbell of Normal exemplify the spirit of philanthropy through their leadership and involvement in numerous community programs and organizations during the more than 45 years they have lived in Bloomington-Normal.

Both are retired from Illinois State University, where Hank was a Technology professor and Mary was a Social Work professor. Hank traveled and consulted nationally and internationally sharing expertise in manufacturing and construction. Mary has worked to expose students to real world issues of poverty, homelessness and social injustice. Mary co-founded and co-directed, with Feli Sebastian, Labyrinth Outreach Services in 2012 and Dreams Are Possible in 2018. Labyrinth serves women re-entering society after incarceration by helping them rebuild their dignity, nurture their growth and prepare them for future employment. With Dreams Are Possible, Hank and Mary, along with dozens of volunteers, transformed a 1910 neighborhood grocery store on Bloomington's west side into a training center for low-income women where they can learn basic job skills while preparing for a future job in a skilled field or the trades. When starting Dreams Are Possible, Mary turned to Illinois Prairie Community Foundation to be the fiscal sponsor, effectively freeing her from administrative duties such as accepting donations and handling finances. Together, Hank and Mary are involved with many organizations, including: LAMU for Preventative Care, which offers free healthcare education and screening for thousands in Kenya; M.J. Rhymer Family Dry Grove Nature Preserve, which they helped establish; and the Multi-Cultural Leadership Program, from which they received the Community Service Award in 2014 in recognition of their extensive leadership work in service to others, especially the underserved in the Bloomington-Normal community.

Outside Twin Cities: Dale Maley

Dale Maley of Fairbury demonstrates the traits of being a philanthropist and his efforts have greatly benefited his hometown of Fairbury as well as Livingston and McLean counties.

A graduate of Fairbury-Cropsey High School, Dale received a degree in Agricultural Engineering at the University of Illinois and MBA at Illinois State University. He retired from Caterpillar Inc., after working for 37 years as an engineer. Dale's work accomplishments included the granting of 16 U.S. patents related to diesel fuel injection.

He is currently president of the Fairbury Improvement Group, which identifies and implements solutions that improve the quality of life for Fairbury citizens; is vice president of the Fairbury Echoes Museum, and president of the Livingston County Historical Society.

During the last six years, the Fairbury Improvement Group has completed more than 50 different projects, including adding 12 murals that bring Fairbury's history to life, repainting three old building advertising signs dating back to 1882, and making improvements in four different parks in Fairbury.

The largest project the Fairbury Improvement group accomplished was the complete renovation of Marsh Park. Dale spearheaded this project, using his engineering experience to save more than $100,000 in design fees for the project, which added a new screened-in pavilion, gazebo, bandstand and more than 1,100 feet of new sidewalks, plus renovated a 100-year-old restroom. This park is once again very popular with children and families.

Dale Maley

Dale has also helped the village of Chatsworth preserve its local history by updating and expanding a book about the 1887 Chatsworth train wreck and writing a book about pioneer settler Franklin Oliver. He also donated engineering design services to the new Central Illinois Connection Center building in Chatsworth. Dale also helped the village of Colfax research its local history and designed four historic murals depicting this history. These murals will be used to bring history to life for current and future generations of Colfax citizens.

As president of the Livingston County Historical Society, Dale has volunteered to repair many items in two historic homes in Pontiac maintained by the historical society.

Dale has researched and written more than 20 history books about Fairbury and Livingston County. He has also written historical stories for the Fairbury Blade newspaper. He provided leadership and financial support to digitize the Blade newspaper dating back to 1881. Blade archives can be accessed free of charge from the Dominy Memorial Library website.
